

CONFIDENCE IN HUERTA IS GROWING

Military Regime Is Only Solution.

CANDIDATES FOR THE PRESIDENCY LOOM UP

Felix Diaz, Francisco de la Barra, Rodolfo Reyes and Dr. Gomez in the Field.

Mexico City, Feb. 25.—Confidence in the new administration is growing in the capital among conservative Mexicans and foreigners. They regard what appears to be a probable military regime as the solution of the present difficulty.

The revulsion of sentiment has been caused by the death of Francisco Madero and Pino Suarez, but the majority of the Mexican people merely shrug their shoulders.

It is likely that there are few chapters of that tragedy still to be written. The bodies have been removed from the penitentiary. The government has refused permission for their transfer to Coahuila and Yucatan, giving as a reason that it does not desire to afford the people of these states an excuse for demonstrations.

One paper in Mexico City denies the stories of the attack on the Madero guard, alleging that the affair was carried out in accordance with prepared plans.

The government insists that it wants to make plain the circumstances of the shooting at a judicial investigation. It has announced, however, that it may be several days before it completes its inquiry.

Calls for Special Elections.

In the chamber of deputies a resolution calling for an immediate holding of special elections resulted in an interpellation of the minister of interior to confirm or refute the statement that the country is yet in a state of revolution.

It is said that General Felix Diaz will have as his opponents in his candidacy for the presidency Francisco de la Barra, the present minister of foreign affairs; Rodolfo Reyes, son of General Bernardo Reyes, who was killed in the first attack on the palace, and Dr. Francisco Vasquez Gomez. Friends have begun a campaign in behalf of these candidates.

Reports are not altogether reassuring from the states of Coahuila, Nuevo Leon and San Luis Potosi, where rebels are committing depredations. The Zapatistas in the south also are giving trouble and it is reported that one town in the state of Puebla has been sacked.

The government says the new revolution attempted by Emilio and Raoul Madero, brothers of the late former president, is making little headway.

The legislature of the state of Morelos has appealed to the central government for troops, declaring that Zapatista raids have been renewed there.

Sends Envoys to Rebel Chiefs.

Answering the offer made by General Zapata, the southern rebel leader, that he would recognize the new government if its program was along promised progressive lines, General Huerta sent envoys with such assurances to the rebel chiefs in the states of Mexico, Guerrero and Morelos. Through his secretary General Huerta said the government would adopt such principles of the San Luis Potosi plan, as revised at Tacubaya, as were compatible.

General Aurelio Blanquet, military commander of the federal district, probably will be appointed governor of the state of Mexico.

Mexico will reply to the note sent the government by the state department at Washington Sept. 15 last without delay and American claims for damages growing out of the revolution will receive prompt attention.

Incidentally several other matters pending between the two governments will not be permitted to drag, according to assurances given to Ambassador Wilson by President Huerta.

Last September the state department at Washington forwarded a note to the Madero administration the contents of which, while never made public, were generally understood to contain a sharp admonition to Mexico to give immediate attention to the demands of Americans for indemnity by reason of loss of life and property during the period of the revolution. It also was alleged to contain a demand for adequate protection of American interests.

To this note no adequate reply was ever made.

Government Sues Cutlery Firm.

New York, Feb. 25.—The United States sued the cutlery firm of Adolph Kastor & Bros., to recover $484,839 back duties on cutlery importations from Germany. According to the complaint the irregularities were between Jan. 7, 1909, and April 17, 1911.

SENDS MILITIA TO STATE LINE

Texas Governor Orders Out Four Companies.

ANXIOUS TO INVADE MEXICO

Captain of Brownsville Company Asks Permission to Cross Border Upon Learning That Several Americans Had Been Arrested at Matamoras and Were Being Held for Ransom.

Austin, Tex., Feb. 25.—Governor Colquitt ordered four companies of the Texas state militia to proceed to Brownsville with all haste when it was reported to him that Americans had been arrested and held for ransom at the Mexican town of Matamoras, across the boundary from Brownsville, when they refused to contribute money to the officials in charge at Matamoras.

The governor also sent this message to Captain Head, in command of the Brownsville company of the Texas national guard:

"Notify Mexican commander at Matamoras who is demanding money that if he harms a single Texan his life will be demanded as a forfeit."

Governor Colquitt received the following telegram from Captain Head of the company of national guard which has been on duty at Brownsville for several days at the request of the sheriff of Cameron county:

"Have just received message from Consul Johnson at Matamoras. Can you authorize me to cross river at order of the consul to protect the consulate and American interests? Demand made upon Americans for money."

The governor telegraphed Captain Head as follows:

"Do not cross river unless you receive orders to do so. Request American consul and Americans to come to Brownsville."

Governor Colquitt has repeated the telegram from Captain Head to the officer in command of the United States troops at Fort Sam Houston.

Governor Colquitt received a telegram informing him that the federal troops will move back into the former positions along the Rio Grande in the Big Bend section of Texas.

This region, embracing about 200 miles of border, was left ungarded by a recent movement of the federal troops inland.

INTERVENTION IS SOUGHT

Resolutions in Texas and Oklahoma Legislatures.

Austin, Tex., Feb. 25.—Resolutions that Texas go on record as demanding intervention outright and insisting that the United States terminate "outrageous conditions now existing in Mexico" were introduced in the Texas senate. Governor Colquitt said that he thought the advice of President Taft in the Mexican situation had been "bad."

Oklahoma City, Okla., Feb. 25.—A resolution declaring that Oklahoma favors intervention in Mexico was introduced in the Oklahoma house of representatives.

MARSHALL REFUSES MONEY

Turns Back $4,800 Appropriated for House Rent for Governor.

Indianapolis, Feb. 25.—Thomas R. Marshall, vice president elect, refused $4,800. That amount was carried in the regular appropriation bill to reimburse Mr. Marshall for money spent for house rent, light, heat and water during his four years as governor of Indiana. The former governor said he did not believe the appropriation constitutional. Mr. and Mrs. Marshall will leave for Washington on Wednesday.

KILLS PET SOCIALIST BILL

Wisconsin Assembly Does Not Favor Court Injunctions.

Madison, Wis., Feb. 25.—The Minckley joint resolution for a constitutional amendment giving the courts power to issue injunctions against public officials in their official capacity was quickly put to death by the assembly. The bill was a Socialist measure, a favorite doctrine of the party.

The Esterbrook bill appropriating $1,500 for the completion of a memorial in the Vicksburg National Military park was passed.

King George Bestows Title on Widow of Arctic Explorer.

London, Feb. 25.—The widow of Captain Robert F. Scott, the Antarctic explorer, henceforth will be known as Lady Scott. King George bestowed on her "the same rank, style and precedence as if her husband had been nominated a knight commander of the bath, as he would have been had he survived."

GENERAL CARTER IS READY

Twenty-seventh Infantry of Fort Sheridan Ordered to Entrain.

Chicago, Feb. 25.—Major General W. H. Carter, commander of the Central department of the United States army, who has been directed to take command of the division ordered to Mexico, will leave here at 7 p. m. The Twenty-seventh Infantry, stationed at Fort Sheridan, was ordered to entrain immediately. Troop trains were sent to the fort.

General Carter ranks as one of the oldest army officers. He entered the service during the Civil war as a messenger boy.

FEDERAL AND STATE TROOPS MAY CLASH

Texas Governor's Action Alarms War Department.

Washington, Feb. 25.—A serious clash may result between federal troops and the Texas national guard at Brownsville, Tex., should the latter attempt to cross the Rio Grande to the relief of Americans alleged to be imperiled in Matamoras, Mex.

When the war department learned that Governor Colquitt had issued orders for four companies of Texas militia to proceed to Brownsville, brigadier General E. J. Steever, in charge of the federal troops on the border, to send to Brownsville immediately such a force as he "deemed necessary" and "under no circumstances" to permit the crossing of the river except upon the specific orders of the secretary of war.

Major General Leonard Wood, chief of staff of the army, recognized the danger in the situation and immediately took personal charge. Over the military telegraph line from Fort Myer he sent imperative orders to General Steever to utilize his forces to prevent the proposed invasion of Mexican territory.

NEWSPAPER CHARGES PLOT

Asserts Mexican Officials Ordered Executions.

Mexico City, Feb. 25.—Unofficial investigations indicate that Madero and Suarez were killed at the rear of the penitentiary on the opposite side from the city and the entrance. The track of automobiles, supposed to have been conveying the prisoners, is discerned along the buildings leading into the road crossing back of the building.

The Noticiero, a Spanish daily newspaper, openly scouts the idea of an attacking party, alleging "that it was all a part of a connected plan for the elimination of the prisoners, whose disposition was embarrassing to the government."

The paper adds that a certain officer had received orders to have a troop in readiness and this contingent figured in the plan.

WILSON EXONERATES HUERTA

Ambassador Believes Official Account of Tragedy.

Mexico City, Feb. 25.—The American ambassador, Henry Lane Wilson, made the following statement regarding the death of Madero and Suarez: "In the absence of other reliable information I am disposed to accept the government's version of the manner in which the ex-president and ex-vice president lost their lives. Certainly the violent deaths of these persons were without government approval and, if the deaths were the result of a plot, it was of restricted character and unknown to the higher officers of the government."

FILIBUSTER AS A SENATE REVENGE

Republicans Threaten the Move.

TO SUPPORT APPOINTMENTS

Opposition by Democrats to Confirmation of Republican Selections Would Lead to Reprisal—It Would Be of Little Avail, Is Belief—Peace Promoters Have Bad Luck.

By ARTHUR W. DUNN.

Washington, Feb. 25.—[Special.]—Republicans who have been disappointed because they could not get their appointments confirmed owing to the determined opposition of the Democrats, have threatened reprisals when Mr. Wilson becomes president, saying they would hold up his appointments by a filibuster. But that will avail little. The senate will meet in special session for the inauguration on March 4 and Wilson's appointments will be sent in.

If the Republicans begin a filibuster the Democrats intend to adjourn the special session at once. Then the president can reappoint all those who failed of confirmation, and they will hold until the adjournment of the following session. If the filibuster continues through the extra session the men can be reappointed. There are men who have held office in this way through an entire administration. But the Republicans will not carry a filibuster to any such length.

Bad For Peace Promoters.

It has been pointed out that the peace advocates have not been very successful since they became very active. The Balkan war in Europe, with the possibility of a war involving all the European powers; the disturbances in Central America and the constant warfare in Mexico seems to indicate that men are pretty much like they were before the advocates of peace became so active. They will fight when their interests are involved.

No one in the United States has ever wanted war or intervention in Mexico, yet people have recognized that the situation might develop which would force intervention, and there were plenty of men who would go into such a war.

Matter of Mules.

Senator Bristow wanted to eliminate the horses from the various vehicles which transport army officers and their families about Washington and other points and introduced an amendment to the army appropriation bill which would have prevented transportation except by the army mule. Well, everybody likes the army mule. He is a well known adjunct to every modern war, but the Kansas senator could not put anything over which meant that the officers of the army and their families when riding about town could only be transported by the mule.

Of course there were the usual number of mule jokes worked off in the senate, and the staid proceedings were interspersed with laughter, which rarely is allowed in the senate. The laughter occurred when senators spoke of the "business end of the mule" and about the "market for mules" and whether the auto or the mule was the more dangerous. Altogether it was quite a lively day for the mule.

Uncle Joe Mixed.

Former Speaker Cannon got into deep water the other day when he tried to apply mythology to modern political conditions. He asked if some commission sprang "full armed, like Minerva from the brain of Jove, with full power to call the spirits from the vasty deep."

"Minerva didn't have any authority like that," interjected Hamilton of Michigan.

"She had a pretty large authority," replied Cannon, seeking a way out.

"My friend from Michigan was not there when Minerva came, and people say I was."

"When Will the Sap Run?"

Frequently questions are addressed to Senator Page of Vermont as to the time when the "sap will run." In the sugar districts that has much meaning. Senator Page has added significance to the idea by having pure maple sugar and maple sirup distributed among his friends in Washington soon after the time when the "sap begins to run."

The sap is the flow from the maple trees which makes maple sugar. It does not exactly make Vermont famous, but maple sugar and Vermont together are famous, and one reminds a person of the other about this time of year.

Wouldn't Be Serious.

Sometimes Senator Bohn of Idaho refuses to be serious. John Sharp Williams was discoursing upon the danger of long continued power in the presidency. "Take a man of no great ability," he said, "take myself or the senator from Idaho, if we wanted to do it; if you gave us twelve, fifteen or twenty years in the presidential office, no power on earth or under heaven could turn us out if we wanted to stay in."

"But the senator from Mississippi and I would have a hard time staying there that long," smilingly remarked Bohn.

"To say nothing of getting there in the first place," was the almost inaudible comment of Clark of Wyoming.

Big Task.

WOULD FUMIGATE CAPITOL

Moore Declares Atmosphere Is Killing Off Lawmakers.

Washington, Feb. 25.—Suggestion that the "heavy, germ laden atmosphere" of the Capitol was in part responsible for the unusual death rate of the Sixty-second congress Representative J. Hampton Moore of Pennsylvania introduced a resolution to authorize a thorough fumigation of the Capitol and the installation of an effective system of ventilation before the beginning of the extra session on April 1.

The preamble recites that seven senators and eighteen representatives died during the Sixty-second congress.

MINNEAPOLIS MILK TRUST CASES CLOSED

Four Men and Three Concerns Plead Guilty.

Minneapolis, Feb. 25.—The milk trust cases were all cleaned from the district court docket with one sweep when pleas of guilty were entered by four men and three companies indicted for violating the state anti-trust law by conspiring to raise prices Oct. 1. Cases against two other men and one company were nolle by the state.

Each of the seven defendants pleading guilty was fined $700 by Judge C. S. Jelley, and President Oscar Erickson and the Minneapolis Dairy company, found guilty by a jury last week, were fined $800 each, bringing the total of all fines assessed in the milk prosecutions up to $13,000.

All fines have now been paid except those of $3,000 against President A. R. Ruhnke of the Minneapolis Milk company and $3,500 against the company itself. In these cases an appeal still may be made.

County Attorney James Robertson nolle the cases against W. R. Cammack and the Crescent Creamery company of St. Paul, as the indictment charged that the firm was a Minnesota corporation, while it is an Illinois corporation. The case against C. J. E. Johnson of the Model Milk company was also nolle, as fines had been imposed on the firm and Samuel Johnson.

GAIN FOR GARMENT WORKERS

Settlement Granting Wage Increase Affects 10,000 in New York.

New York, Feb. 25.—As the result of conferences between M. J. Reagan, state industrial mediator, and Thomas A. Rickert, president of the United Garment Workers' union, it was announced that 10,000 men and women employed by the members of the Association of Boys' Clothing Manufacturers of New York, who have been on strike for two months, would return to work this week.

The agreement, it was said, provides for an increase of from $1 a week to 10 per cent a week, a maximum of fifty-four hours' labor a week and no discrimination in the re-employment of the workers.

About sixty thousand garment workers of the total number who went on strike Jan. 1 are not affected by this settlement.

Howard Will Be Confirmed.

Washington, Feb. 25.—A favorable report on President Taft's nomination of Clinton W. Howard to succeed Cornelius Hanford, who resigned under pressure in the Washington Fourth judicial district, was ordered by the senate judiciary committee. Senator Poindexter of Washington made a strong fight against Howard.

EXTRA SESSION ON APRIL 1

President Elect Wilson Sets Date for Congress to Meet.

Trenton, N. J., Feb. 25.—President Elect Wilson announced that the extra session of congress would be convened on Tuesday, April 1.

In reply to a question President Elect Wilson said:

"I will make no announcement of the subjects I will recommend for consideration by the extra session until after I get to Washington—in fact, until I send in my message."

Supreme Court Upholds Utah Law on Railroad's Negligence.

Washington, Feb. 25.—Irrespective of the Hepburn rate law, the supreme court held, a person accepting gratuitous transportation from a railroad still is under the protection of state law against injury or death by negligence.

The decision was reached in the case of the heirs of Charles A. Schuyler, assistant chief clerk of the railway mail service, at Ogden, Utah, killed in a wreck while riding on his commission as an employee in a mail car. The Southern Pacific railway claimed he was a trespasser because its employees had no right to admit him to the car and therefore it was not liable for his death.

RIVERS AND HARBORS BILL

Senate Passes Measure With Nelson Amendment.

Washington, Feb. 25.—The rivers and harbors bill containing the Nelson amendment providing for increasing the height of the navigation dam now being constructed so that electric current may be furnished to St. Paul and Minneapolis and the state university at cost passed the senate.

Besides providing for the construction of the St. Paul high dam the bill carried appropriations for Minnesota projects amounting to more than $700,000. The largest of these is the continuing appropriation for the improvement of the Duluth-Superior harbor amounting to $375,280.

THREE CHILDREN CREMATED

Mother Also Fatally Burned in Attempting Rescue.

Elkins, W. Va., Feb. 25.—Three small children were cremated and their mother probably fatally burned in a fire which destroyed the home of Hubert Slough, a railroad man, at Oxley. The mother was visiting. A fourth child, who escaped, sounded an alarm and when rescuers reached the house they found the charred bodies under a large cook stove where they apparently had taken refuge.

Mrs. Slough arrived during the height of the flames. She forced her way into the house, receiving probably fatal burns.

PLEADS GUILTY TO GRAFT

Sentence of Captain Walsh Deferred in New York City.

New York, Feb. 25.—Police Captain Thomas W. Walsh, implicated by Police Officer Eugene Fox, confessed collector of "protection money" who later confessed to having received graft money from Fox, pleaded guilty to the indictment against him charging bribery. Bail was fixed at $1,000 and sentence deferred at the request of District Attorney Whitman, to whom Walsh confessed his part in the alleged system of levying tribute from disorderly houses.

Ten Thousand Troops Will Assemble at Galveston.

GENERAL CARTER COMMANDS

President Taft Takes Steps to Mobilize an Entire Division at the Most Convenient Port to Embark for Mexico. Soldiers Will Be Equipped for Foreign Service and Ready to Execute Orders Promptly.

El Paso, Tex., Feb. 25.—
Ninety-five federal volunteer soldiers were executed at Sanz, below Juarez. They composed part of the garrison which revolted, angered at the killing of ex-President Madero, their former leader.
One at a time the soldiers were stood against an adobe wall.
More than fifty of the garrison escaped before the arrival of a strong detachment of federal regular troops from Chihuahua City.

Washington, Feb. 25.—Military orders flew thick and fast in redemption of President Taft's promise to have an army of 10,000 men assembled at Galveston, the most convenient port to Mexico, all equipped for foreign service and ready to execute any order that his successor might choose to issue upon the basis of conditions that will exist after March 4.

These orders on the whole were supplementary to those which began to flow from the war department towards the end of last week and were calculated to insure the assemblage of the Second division of the reorganized army at or in the neighborhood of Galveston.

The completion of the orders to move the entire Second division is intended as further warning to Mexico that there will be no departure from the established policy of preparedness during the remaining week of President Taft's administration.

All plans for the possible sending of troops into the republic to the South will continue with the same minuteness of detail which would characterize official orders had the present acute condition arisen in Mexico at any time earlier in the strife, which has rent that republic since its first uprising against Porfirio Diaz more than two years ago.

This course is justified on the ground that any cessation in the closing days or even hours of the Taft administration might be seized by Mexican malcontents as an opportunity for a strike at Americans which could not be adequately overcome should officials relax their vigilance.

Much Depends on Wilson.

So far the state department has given little thought to the question of political recognition of the new government in Mexico, preferring to await developments and willing to regard it largely by recommendations by Ambassador Wilson.

Major General William H. Carter, who commands the Second division of the army, was ordered to Galveston. This will be the second time that this officer has commanded a complete division of troops within the limits of the state of Texas, the first being in the case of the mobilization of 1911, when the Mexican trouble first became acute.

The Fifth brigade of this division already is moving under previous orders to Galveston, as is the Fourth field artillery, composed of mountain batteries. The order issued will set in motion the Fourth brigade, the Sixth brigade and the Sixth cavalry. Brigadier General Frederick A. Smith commands the Fifth brigade, previously ordered to concentrate; Colonel Edwin F. Glenn of the Twenty-third infantry will command the Fourth brigade, in the illness of Brigadier General Ramsey D. Potts; Colonel Arthur William of the Eleventh infantry will command the Sixth brigade in place of Brigadier General Clarence Edwards, who is under orders for Philippine service.

The war department's estimate is that under these orders there will be concentrated at Galveston between 8,000 and 9,000 infantry, about 800 cavalry and about the same number of field artillery, or a total of nearly 10,000 men.

DE LA BARRA DID BIG PUBLIC WORK

Was Thought Most Popular
Man in Mexico.

ONCE AMBASSADOR TO U. S.

Man Who Got Big Recognition in Recent Revolt a Great Student of South American Governments—Mexico City a Scene of Ruin—Priests and Nuns Do Splendid Work.

Francisco Leon de la Barra, who was recently again placed at the head of Mexican affairs, is best known in this country as Mexican ambassador to the United States, a post he held from 1909 to 1911, being called home in March of the latter year to become minister of foreign affairs in President Diaz's cabinet.

Shortly afterward, following President Diaz's withdrawal, he became provisional president of Mexico. As ambassador at Washington he made many friends in this country. He was on intimate terms with President Taft and Secretary Knox and was in their confidence concerning the mobilization of United States troops on the Texas frontier.

He was born in 1863, received his education at the College of the City of Mexico and upon completing his studies there took up the law and was admitted to the bar. His specialty was international law, and his first important work after he entered the foreign affairs office was the negotiation of various treaties with foreign powers, notably one of commerce and navigation with Holland and one of extradition with Italy.

He was made a member of the Federal Congress in 1891 and remained there until 1896. As president of the international law committee of the Pan-American Congress, which met in Mexico City in 1901, he was the leading advocate of the measure for the compulsory adjustment of money claims.

He was Mexico's delegate to the Pan-American Congress in Rio de Janeiro in 1906 and to the peace conference at The Hague in 1907.

As envoy to all the republics on the Atlantic coast of South America he was said to have achieved a wonderful knowledge of Latin-American affairs. He represented his country in the Netherlands and in Belgium before being sent as ambassador to the United States.

Senor de la Barra was known in Washington for his pleasing manners and the fluency and correctness of his French and English.

Hundreds of Homeless.

There was no estimating the number of homeless people suddenly reduced to misery in Mexico City. After leaving their homes destroyed by cannon they had no places of refuge save the churches. The fathers of the church had opened the sanctuary to the distressed. By the time daylight came on the sixth day at least 10,000 people, mostly women and children, were sleeping or praying in them. The churches of San Jose de los Naturales, Santa Vera Cruz, San Francisco, La Concepcion, La Balvanera, Santa Caterina de Sena, Jesus Maria and many more were crowded with the miserable. It is estimated that 3,000 persons fell in the week of fighting. A big proportion were noncombatants.

The charity of the priests went part way toward alleviating suffering and hunger. The Catholic sisters nursed sick and injured women, while brothers of the orders and the priests provided coffee, beans and the ever necessary cigarettes.

Daylight exposed the dreadful ruin that had been wrought after five days of tremendous cannonading in the center of a city of 500,000 people. From the great national palace on the east to the legislative palace and the Colonia Roma (where the American embassy is located) on the west and from the Church of San Hipolito on the north to the Belem prison on the south a territory containing the most beautiful streets and the finest public and business buildings of the capital showed signs of wreckage, and in the Charles IV. square many houses have been dismantled or broken to pieces.

Streets Seem Tornado Swept.

A score of streets appear as if they had been swept by a tornado. Mounds of wreckage and debris in which lie the bodies of human beings and of horses offend the senses. Many of the streets are impassable. The incessant storm of lead and iron has wrecked the electric lighting. The telephone service is practically ruined.

There is no business whatever. The banks have been closed for days. The public markets are deserted. Even the general postoffice is shut, many of the employees having been drafted into the federal army. But the greatest menace of all is that of pestilence. Nothing whatever has been done by the troops of either side to protect the city from plague.

More than 1,000 American citizens were quartered at the American embassy or in private houses, many unfurnished, hired by Ambassador Wilson. The Americans have been active in caring for other foreign residents. In the sudden begira of late Wednesday evening, when all of the automobiles were hired.

WILLIAM E. SCOTT ANSWERS LAST CALL

Popular Locomotive Engineer of the Northern Pacific Railway, Passes Away Suddenly

MONDAY AT LOCAL HOSPITAL

Was Severely Burned in Accident at Dillworth Last Wednesday and then Brought to Brainerd

William E. Scott, aged 41, one of the most popular locomotive engineers on the Northern Pacific railway, passed away at a local hospital Monday afternoon, death being due to burns received in an accident at Dillworth last Wednesday.

It appears that while working about his engine his foot slipped and he fell from the locomotive and cut a couple of gashes in his head. He had his torch in his hand when he fell and this set fire to his clothing and he was burned about his neck and arm before others could come to his assistance and extinguish the blaze. He was brought to a local hospital for treatment.

Engineer Scott had been in the employ of the Northern Pacific railway a period of 28 years. He worked as call boy when 15 years old and then became successively hostler at the roundhouse, fireman and engineer and for the last seven years he had been employed as engineer trying out engines. He belonged to the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers and Firemen order.

He came to Brainerd when 10 years old. In 1893 he was married to Miss Mary Thiery and to them five children were born, Jennie aged 17, Emory aged 15, William aged 14, Walter aged 13 and Frances aged 9. A brother, Emory Scott, lives at St. Paul and is an engineer having the run from St. Paul to Staples. A sister Mrs. Frank Mattson resides in Spokane, Wash., and another sister, Mrs. Jerry George in Florida. Mrs. G. W. Blislar is a sister-in-law of the deceased.

Mrs. Scott preceded him to her reward just 11 months ago and he will be buried at his wife's side in Evergreen cemetery. The funeral will be held Wednesday at 2:30 from the Losey & Dean undertaking parlors and at 3 P. M. from the Methodist church, Rev. Elbert E. Satterlee officiating.

The sympathy of the community is extended the family in its sad bereavement.

COMMISSION FORM

R. P. Brower of St. Cloud, Tells Fergus Falls People How New Form of Government Works

Fergus Falls Journal: Former Senator R. B. Brower of St. Cloud was in the city Wednesday trying a case before Referee W. L. Parsons in bankruptcy, and reports that St. Cloud is very much pleased with the way the commission form of government has worked in that city. Mr. Brower says that they were very fortunate in getting three excellent men to take charge of the affairs, each of whom is paid $1,500 a year. Mr. Seeberger, who gives all of his time to the running of city affairs was formerly an educator in the public schools there and spent several years in studying the matter of municipal government and therefore brought to the position considerable training. Senator Brower is of the opinion that St. Cloud should have gone a step further and created a commission with one director, with possibly two men who devote part of their time as counsellors. He is of the opinion that a general manager for the city with a couple of good men for counsellors and conferring constantly with the head of departments, is an even better proposition than the commission form as they now have it.

In abandoning their wards and aldermen he says they took a long step in the right direction, and while they could not go as far as they wanted to because of the newness of the idea and the aversion on the part of many to paying adequate salaries, he thinks that the results have been so beneficial that no one would think of going back to the ward system with aldermen, but on the other hand will adopt new and progressive ideas in regard to municipal administration. He believes that the time will come in the near future when a municipal administrator will not necessarily have to be a resident of the town which employs him but they will do as they do in European countries, advertise for a suitable person and have him submit his experience and qualifications, based upon his successful operation of other cities. As they see the benefits of the new methods, Senator Brower says he can hardly understand how they tolerated the old system whereby things were done for wards regardless of the benefit of the citizens.

IRON AND STEEL REVIEW

Steel Trade is Full of Vitality and Railroads are Still Distributing Equipment Orders

New York, February 25—The steel trade is full of vitality and the railroads are still distributing equipment orders with a liberal hand. Last week the principal contracts came from the Norfolk & Western, the International Great Northern, while the Pennsylvania company put out another call for bids on 6,500 cars.

The Norfolk & Western distributed orders for 7,700 tons of bridge works and 650 tons of which went to the American Bridge company. The same road contracted for a heavy tonnage of structural steel for 4,500 cars.

The International Great Northern ordered 5,500 tons of rails, 400 cars and 10 locomotives. The Burlington is to have 25 locomotives constructed, while the Wheeling & Lake Erie gave an order for 20 and the Missouri Pacific for 7 locomotives. Other numerous small rail orders aggregated 30,000 tons and were placed by railroads in the west. The International's order for 40,000 tons of rails went to foreign mills. The Carnegie Steel company is to finish 1,500 tons of structural steel plates and shapes and 10,000 tons of armor plate for the United States battleship Pennsylvania.

Activity continued in fabricated steel for manufacturing plant extension and for commercial purposes.

EARLY NAVIGATION OF RED RIVER

Story of Engineer L. J. Young Given the Dispatch by John H. Hill, of Ironton

CROW WING IN THE EARLY DAYS

Steamer Was Rebuilt With Lumber Sawed at the Gull River Mill in 1858 (Concluded)

After traveling some distance we found it necessary to camp every 20 miles and double up our loads, as our loads were too heavy for the teams to haul all at one time. Our point of destination on the Red River of the North was Lafayette, opposite the mouth of Cheyenne River. We passed through the Ottertail country and crossed Ottertail lake. When we got near Detroit lake there was a blizzard and Charles Northrup, Mr. Northrup's son, and myself were ordered to go to the Red River to get assistance. We had already made one trip to the river. We started out from camp in the morning when the day was beautiful, but within an hour we could not see the horses' heads, owing to the awful storm. We struck an island in a lake which we named Detroit lake. We put up a tent and brush for the ponies and gave them water. We were there three days without anything to eat and were just making up our minds to kill one of the ponies when the storm cleared up and we resumed our journey. The snow had drifted badly and in places was many feet deep, but it had packed so hard that we drove over the drifts without any difficulty. It was 40 miles to Red River from where we were. When we were within 10 miles of the Red River we met some men coming out with oxen and provisions for our party.

On our first trip to Red River we reached there the first day of April, 1859, with 7 yoke of oxen and the steamer's boiler. Then we commenced going back and hauling our stuff in.

The crew started to build quarters to live in and the blacksmith and myself built a blacksmith shop and began to set up the machinery. When we got fairly started at our work the teams went back and brought up the rest of the materials. I don't remember how long it was until the last of the snow was gone, but in the mean time the boat was being rebuilt. I do not recall when it was launched. One incident of our life there may be of interest. We had very little provisions when we reached Red River and Mr. Northrup detailed one of our men as a hunter and we were supplied with all the wild geese and ducks we wanted. When the boat was launched, it was named the Anson Northrup. We took her across the Red River to the mouth of the Cheyenne and work was rushed to get her ready, and the steam pipes up so that we could run to Fort Abercrombie. We loaded everything on board and got ready to start for Abercrombie. The pilot house was propped up on some planks and the steam pipes were also propped up with scantling. We had only gone about four or five miles when the shaking of the boat brought the pipes down and the steam came out of the boiler. We had quite a time there and were at a loss to know what to do. The old blacksmith shop was five miles away. However, we picked up some pieces of oak bark which made a hot fire and we succeeded in getting the pipes fixed up again and then proceeded to Fort Abercrombie. At Abercrombie we put a cabin on the boat similar to those on the Mississippi boats now, and on May 17th, started for Fort Gary, the river being very high.

We stopped at Pembina on the international boundary where there was a custom house. The custom house officer came on board and we treated him very nicely. We then proceeded on to Fort Gary landing in front of the fort at the mouth of the Assiniboine river, which empties into the Red River of the North from the west. The Hudson Bay company had their soldiers in the fort and when the boat landed, there was displayed on the boat an American flag which was up, and the soldiers came out with six pound guns, four of them on a piece of ground in front of the fort with the British flag flying and began to salute the steamer. They shot away for hours. The next day the people at Fort Gary wanted to take a trip on the boat and when the people found out that they could go on an excursion down the river to Lake Winnipeg, everybody wanted to go. We could not accommodate all and we had to persuade some of them (Continued on page four)

FAMILY MOVES INTO SEWER.

Evicted From Home, Man Takes Brood to Strange Abode.

Paul Hatin, his wife, sister and five little children were evicted from their home for nonpayment of rent, and early that day they moved their belongings into one of the main sewers in the heart of Paris.

City workmen had left the traps open while away at breakfast and Hatin with ropes lowered a bed, bedding, cook stove and other household belongings into the sewer.

When the workmen returned they found Mme. Hatin preparing breakfast in the sewer. They would not allow the family to camp there, but the workmen bought milk for the little Hatins and gave Hatin money enough to allow him to get a room. Hatin said he had tried in vain to obtain aid from the authorities and was at his wits' end when he espied the open sewer.

Gifts With a String.

Wedding gifts in olden times were mere loans, to be returned when the couple were well established in their new home. But when the feudal lord increased in power he grew to expect presents from his newly wedded children from those dependent upon him. Later laws were passed compelling a present in value up to one-twentieth of the yearly rent of the tenant.

Man and Repose.

Repose is agreeable to the human mind, and decision is repose. A man has made up his opinions, he does not choose to be disturbed, and he is much more thankful to the man who confirms him in his errors and leaves him alone than he is to the man who refutes him, or who instructs him at the expense of his tranquility.—Sydney Smith

WOMEN TO PLAY BIG PART IN WILSON

Suffragists' Parade on March 3 to Be Wonderful Event.

By JAMES A. EDGERTON.

"VOTES for women!" will be the slogan heard on the streets of Washington on March 3. It will not only be heard, but seen, people along Pennsylvania avenue Seventeenth street and other thoroughfares traversed by the suffragist parade being given a chance to see little else. It will be the battery of the marchers, will shine from banners, transparencies and floats and will greet the eye and the ear in every way that can be devised by the army of thousands of suffragists that will invade the capital from practically every state in the Union. It is designed even to go up in the air with it, a suffragist aeroplane carrying the magic legend above the heads of the marchers.

The parade will represent the progress of women through the ages, sections of it being in the costumes of the middle ages and others representing successive centuries from that time to the present. At one time it was designed to go back even farther and garb some of the marchers in the flowing robes of ancient Greece and Rome, but the plan was abandoned when those in charge reflected with a shiver on the usual brand of weather pulled off in Washington on inauguration days. The women workers will also be represented. It is asserted that there are now 6,000,000 of these in the nation who have invaded the occupations of men and are earning their own living. Women lawyers, doctors, ministers, teachers, actresses, newspaper workers, stenographers, clerks, business women, mill workers and other feminine toilers will be represented. Other sections of the parade will show the number of countries that have granted women the vote in whole or in part; also the nine American states in which suffrage has triumphed. It was planned to have one float present in a striking way to the eyes of beholders the ones from whom the vote is withheld—a baby, an imbecile, a convict and a woman.

The Hike to Washington.

One section of the suffragist pageant will be given up to "General" Rosalie Jones and her fellow hikers from New York to Washington. It was the intrepid "General" Jones who led "Colonel" Ida Craft, "Surgeon General" Dock and one or two others in the march from New York to Albany to present a suffrage petition to Governor Sulzer. After this stunt was pulled off with due publicity the grander design dawned on the mind of the dashing leader that still wider publicity could be gained by a hike to Washington to present a similar petition to President Elect Wilson.

It was on Lincoln's birthday, Feb. 12, that the marchers got under way. At the start off there were "General" Jones, "Colonel" Craft, two captains and eleven privates. One of the fair recruits had given up her job to join the glad procession. It being rather damp marching across the North river and the Jersey meadows, the hikers compromised by riding in a tube train to Newark. Colonel Craft did not think this was entirely right and tried to ease her conscience by marching back and forth through the train, much to the disgust of other passengers, who shivered as she opened the doors. Colonel Craft concluded that, as she could not march as fast as the train ran, even this method smacked of fraud, so she reluctantly subsided. The actual march started at Newark. An attempt is being made to convert everybody en route; also to take on recruits. Trenton, Philadelphia, Baltimore and various intervening towns lie along the line of march, and if any "anties" are left therein it will be because they would not hear. At Philadelphia a lone man has promised to join the procession, and at Baltimore a whole company of suffragists are to sail in line and hike across the state of Maryland.

The "Petticoat Cavalry."

About eight days after the departure of "General" Rosalie Jones from New York Mrs. Gus Rubin is to lead a body of suffragists from the same town, but these are to go on horseback. In the militant terminology that the suffragists are adopting this is to be the cavalry, the hikers constituting the infantry. It is not stated whether Mrs. Rubin is to be a general or only a colonel, but anyway she will be the feminine edition of the "man on horse-she will not follow the same route as General Jones, seeking to convert a different strip of territory.

This cavalry idea is to be quite the thing in the parade. Mrs. Richard Burleson of Texas, wife of a United States army officer, who is also a cousin of Representative A. S. Burleson, is to be the grand marshal of the parade and is to be accompanied by a cavalry squad of about fifty. At one time it was reported that Mrs. Nicholas Longworth, daughter of Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, was to be one of this fair company. There will also be cavalrymen—hog pardon, cavalrywomen—from Virginia. The official announcements of the affair call them "petticoat cavalry."

MISS INEZ MILLHOLLAND.

One of the humors of the situation is furnished by the march stolen on the regular inaugural committees by the suffragists. It is the custom to reserve all the rooms at hotels and boarding houses in advance for those attending the inauguration. This year the women went about early reserving all the choice rooms in Washington for their followers so that when the regular inauguration committees began their canvass no desirable quarters were left.

The object of the pageant is boldly announced. It is the beginning of a nation wide campaign for an amendment to the federal constitution assuring women the ballot throughout the United States. Hereofore the suffragists have confined their attention to the states. Now they are going after the nation. March 3 is chosen because at that time Washington will be full of people attending the inauguration, and the suffragists can thus impress the incoming administration.

Noted Women Enlisted.

Advance notices from suffragist headquarters present some glowing promises for the parade, from which the following points are taken:

In preparation for the procession the suffragists for the last few weeks have been carrying on an active campaign which will be gradually increased in excitement until the climax of endeavor is reached on March 3. An average of six meetings a day, including at least one street meeting, are being held, with such well known women as Mrs. John Rodgers, Jr., of New York, sister-in-law of Secretary of War Stimson, doing the speaking.

Those who are making the active preparations include some of the best known women in the country. Mrs. Robert M. La Follette, wife of the progressive senator from Wisconsin, has been actively at work, and her daughter, Miss Fola La Follette, is chairman of the committee on actresses. Miss Flora Wilson, daughter of the secretary of agriculture, is chairman of the committee on musicians, and Mrs. F. T. Dubois, wife of former Senator Dubois, is in charge of women's clubs.

Miss Alice Paul of Philadelphia is in active charge of all plans, and Mrs. Glenna Smith Tamm of Washington and Miss Hazel MacKaye will direct the pageant feature.

Nordica Will Help.

While the procession and pageant is marching along Pennsylvania avenue a series of tableaux will be in progress on the treasury steps. Mme. Nordica, impersonating Columbia, will be the central figure of the tableaux, and with her will be Justice, Hope, Liberty, Peace, Charity, the virtues with which woman is supposed to be endowed. Florence Fleming Noyes, the classical dancer, will take the part of Liberty, and equally well known women will take the other parts. Scores of boys and girls in fancy costumes will fill out the scenes, and an orchestra will accompany all movements.

As Miss Inez Millholland of New York, herald of the procession, approaches the treasury building riding horseback and dressed in yellow the five virtues will form a semicircle about Columbia, with their attendants back of them in wedge form, all making Columbia's crown.

A giant mass meeting is to be held at Memorial Continental hall, the home of the D. A. R., at the conclusion of the procession. Here Dr. Anna Howard Shaw, Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt and equally well known women will deliver addresses.

The suffrage speakers who have been addressing meetings in Washington have been having some difficulty about their appeals, because in the District of Columbia neither men nor women vote. Speakers from other sections, not always realizing this fact, have been unable to appeal directly to the men for justice, for the men themselves here have no more political rights than the women.

Efforts on the part of men who want suffrage in the District to confuse the two issues have been met with the diplomatic response that "we want equal suffrage, and you have it."

From Baltimore will go a string of golden chariots, drawn by milk white steeds and driven by suffragists dressed in Roman costumes. The forty miles from Baltimore to Washington are to be covered in one day, and a squadron of petticoat cavalry is to ride as an escort of honor. The Baltimore chariots have become famous in suffrage processions in the east.

Suffragist Pioneers Honored.

One section of the parade will represent the early efforts for the cause in America, beginning with the first convention in 1848. Descendants of Mrs. Elizabeth Cady Stanton and others of the early leaders are to participate, dressed in the costumes of the period.

The workers in behalf of the pageant have not had all clear sailing. At first the Washington society leaders were cold, but when they discovered it was all the rage they fell over each other in the rush to secure prominent places in the pageant. Perhaps the squelching of the inaugural ball also helped the suffragists, some of the modistes and others enlisting in a spirit of revenge and also with the idea of getting rid of some of their accumulated millinery and dress fabrics.

ington police, at first said that the fair marchers could not appear on Pennsylvania avenue, but after ducking the resultant storm the major gave small and discreetly lost himself in the background. The boys who threatened to turn loose mice and rats along the parade route have also been properly squelched.

Representative J. Thomas Heflin of Alabama, who advised the women of Virginia not to march in the procession on the ground that woman suffrage breaks up the home, brought down the displeasure of the suffragist leaders on his head. Mrs. Champ Clark, wife of the speaker of the house, and Mrs. Helen H. Gardener, one of the active leaders in the procession plans, issued statements denying the claims of the gentleman from Alabama.

Mrs. Gardener called Mr. Heflin "the Beau Brummel of the house" and said that thirty-three years before he was born Abraham Lincoln wrote a letter in which he said, "I go for all sharing the privileges of the government who assist in bearing its burdens, by no means excluding women."

From all of which it doth appear that woman—lovely woman—is amply able to take care of herself; likewise that if the American suffragette does not break windows like her English sister she at least breaks into print.

IF CONSTIPATED OR BILIOUS—'CASCARETS'

No Biliousness, Headache, Sick, Sour Stomach, Indigestion, Coated Tongue or Constipation.

Furred tongue, bad taste, indigestion, sallow skin and miserable headaches come from a torpid liver and clogged bowels, which cause your stomach to become filled with undigested food, which sours and ferments like garbage in a swill barrel. That's the first step to untold misery—indigestion, foul gases, bad breath, yellow skin, mental fears, everything that is horrible and nauseating. A Cascaret tonight will give your constipated bowels a thorough cleansing and straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep—a 10-cent box from your druggist will keep you feeling good for months. Millions of men and women take a Cascaret now and then to keep their stomach, liver and bowels regulated, and never know a miserable moment. Don't forget the children—their little insides need a good, gentle cleansing, too.

to remain. We had all the passengers we could carry aboard when we started for Lake Winnipeg. Among the crowd were the Hudson Bay soldiers. The soldiers found we were all Yankees and they sang "Britanna the Gem of the Ocean." Then they would pass around little bottles of Jamaica rum and we would take a drink with them. We stopped at the Stone fort about 16 or 18 miles down from Fort Gary and the officers of the fort invited us all to the fort where we were well received. We then resumed our trip down the river and went into Lake Winnipeg. We went out into the edge of the lake and turned around and came back to the Stone fort again, where we drank English egg nog and had a real good time. We then returned to Fort Gary. The boat was just as full of people as it could be. The object of running the steamer on the river was to open up a route of travel from Fort Gary to the United States. That was the year when the Hudson Bay company, owing to the expiration of some charter privileges, ceased to monopolize the trade and business of Manitoba and the northwest. Before navigation was established on the Red River it required six months to make a trip with what are called Macinaw boats from Selkirk to York factory on Hudson Bay. The route by way of St. Paul being much shorter and easier. Opposite Fort Gary at the missionary settlement of St. Boniface, Norman Kittson had established a trading post and I visited his store and saw a white buffalo robe, the only one I ever heard of.

On our return homeward from Fort Gary the boat had a large number of passengers. There were three families on board. We also had as passengers four young ladies who were going to England to be educated. One young lady was a Miss McTavish, whose father was a prominent officer of the Hudson Bay company. We were to take our passengers up the river as far as we could get and then they were to go to St. Paul by stage. There was a nice party of them on board. We stopped the boat at Georgetown and our passengers were then taken in covered wagons, like you see out west and were driven over land to St. Paul. The other people connected with the steamer went to St. Paul also, except a Mr. Cleghorn and myself. We remained to take care of the boat and took the boat to Fort Abercrombie and left it there and then went to Ottetall lake to get some materials which had been left behind. We walked to the lake from Fort Abercrombie, where we found a bateau which we had left behind. We got our materials and returning went through the lake and began going down the outlet. We had not gone but a few hours when a large band of Indians came out in canoes and came to the side of our boat and asked us to give them bread and whiskey. That was all they could say. There were only two of us in the boat and we did not know very much about Indians and in consequence felt a little nervous. There was about a dozen canoes on each side of us. They followed us for a considerable distance and then finally went away.

Going down the river, which we were not acquainted with, we came to some rapids and before we knew our situation we went over the rapids and then over Fergus Falls. There was one man living at the Falls and seeing us, he came running out and helped us to pull the boat out and asked us where we came from. He was a man who had taken a claim there. He invited us into his house and gave us a cup of hot coffee, which I will long remember. From Fergus Falls to Breckenridge we went down about half the distance we had come and pitched our tent and camped. The next day we made Breckenridge, and the next day after we made Fort Abercrombie; that was in 1859. In the meantime while we were making this trip Mr. Northrup had reached St. Paul and sold his boat to Messrs. Burbank and Blackley. Mr. Northrup did not return, but sent word back to get the boat ready to go down to Fort Gary with a load of goods for the Hudson Bay company. We got the boat ready and when the goods arrived we loaded them on the boat and started down the river. In the mean time Captain Bell from St. Paul arrived and took charge of the boat. The account of our second trip down the river is well told by Captain Bell in
